

“Osage Community Supported Agriculture (OCSA) Research Study”

Tonya Wapskineh

Learning Objectives

As a result of completing this training, participants will be able to:

1. Define food sovereignty and its role in supporting food-secure communities
2. Learn study aims of the Osage Community Supported Agriculture Study
3. Identify an Indigenous Food Sovereignty CBPR Conceptual Model

Helpful Links

FRESH Curriculum paper:

<https://doi.org/10.1016/j.jneb.2021.07.011>

Center for Indigenous Health Research and Policy – OCSA Study:

<https://indigenoushealth.com/projects/ocsa/>

Charlotte Cotè publication outlining the four principles of Food Sovereignty:

https://www.researchgate.net/publication/305371338_Indigenizing_Food_Sovereignty_Revitalizing_Indigenous_Food_Practices_and_Ecological_Knowledges_in_Canada_and_the_United_States

